WOMEN SUFFERERS MAY NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

Using "Cut-Over" Lands.

Agricultural possibilities of "cut over" lands in Louisiana have been once more demonstrated by Ed Strain, a farmer living a mile and a half north of St. Benedict, producing a bale of cotton an acre on cut-over land broken and prepared in the fall and planted in cotton in the spring of the next year. The fact that Mr. Strain is a blacksmith by trade and has taken to farming only recently renders the agricultural feat the more remarkable.

CLOTHES OF OUR SAILOR LADDIES

Apparel Is Supplied to Face All Kinds of Weather.

CLING TO BLACK KERCHIEFS

Jackies Must Know How to Care for Their Clothing and Do Their Own Laundry Work if Necessary.

(From the Committee on Public Information, Washington, D. C.)

Shifting seas and changing climates have made the sailor man familiar with every aspect of the combat with weather. Trained to face nature in the open, he is ready for her vagaries, whether they be of the inlandlike peacefulness or the storm-tossed waves of an ocean in all its fury. He knows how to dress to meet every condition, and the navy not only has him sufficiently clad, but has the clothes in his sea bag and ready for use when he needs them.

The "gob" likes the cut of his clothes and he has a roll and jauntiness about him at all times that provokes his calling. Fashions come and go and orders may change the habiliments of the soldier, but not so with the man of the sea. His are eternally blue, the pattern never varies and tradition still holds her own in their making. Years ago in the days of wooden sailing ships when seamen had to climb masts and dangle from the stretched-out ends of yardarms to do their rudest reefing, convenience and custom made necessary the bell-shaped lower ends of the trousers. And time and manner of construction of ships have never wrought a change.

The sailor, too, clings to his black silk handkerchief, draped around his low-necked blouse tied across his breast. Latter days have made obsolete the white lanyard that went about his neck, but the silken kerchief still remains. Tradition tells that this handkerchief, thus worn, originated with the British tar, for the blacks once worn in this fashion by men of the English navy as a mark of mourning for Lord Nelson have never been removed.

And the sailor has to give a good deal of attention to this part of his costume. The handkerchief is square and four times the usual size. Early morning or just before the call for shore leave is sounded there is heard on shipboard a flapping that sounds like waves striking the sides of the ship. This happens when Jack is getting the wrinkles out of his neckwear. The handkerchief is stretched out and a man taking a good hold on either side, it is given an up-and-down shaking until it is smooth and glossy. He then folds it in a three-cornered way and, putting it about his neck, ties the ends in a knot that only a real sailorman knows.

Fussy About His Hats.

The sailor is also just a trifle fussy about his hats, and he has three of them. No one has exactly understood the balance a seaman can get with one of the circular pancake caps he perches at almost any angle on his head. This cap is ornamented with the band bearing the name of his ship or station or simply the pithed inscription "U. S. Navy," and he is always buying a new one, for the Jack who is alleged to have a sweetheart in every port must have a band for every one of them as a souvenir and a sentimental reminder for the girl he leaves behind him.

The sailor also has a knitted cap for winter wear, one that can be pulled down over his ears to cover nearly all of his face—something he needs for deck work, for the continuous watch from the ship's rail for the sneaking submarine or to shield him from the crow's nest. But of them all it is his little white hat that he loves the most. With the same skill and equal nonchalance he can perch this on his head at any angle, always with the appearance of just about to tumble off but never falling. This hat he can wash and from the top there is a little string, he calls a "stop" so that he can hang it out on wash day.

When a boy tosses off his home clothes for the last time he is given a complete outfit by the navy. Every bit of it is "regulation." He must know just how to fold and store away each bit according to set and immutable rules, and each piece must have his name marked on it with indelible ink. It must always be scrupulously clean and neat. Some of the ships have a laundry, and if not he must wash it himself. There are also ship's tailors, but he must, nevertheless, know how to sew, to darn and to mend. Here is just what a sailor's wardrobe includes: Overshirt, two unders jumpers, dress jumper, three white unders jumpers, blue trousers, four white trousers, dungarees (overalls), Jersey overcoat, rain clothes, two flannel shirts, two each light and heavy undershirts, one blue cap, two white hats, watch cap, two suits of pajamas, jack-knife, leggings, neckerchief, gloves, four pair socks, two pairs shoes, rubber boots, mattress, two mattress covers, shoe brush and blacking, pair blankets, towels, pair gymnast shoes.

Quite a trousseau for the young man now wedded to the sea. Once a week he must unpack his sea bag, unlash his hammock and open up his ditty bag and, spreading all his dress possessions out on deck, submit to a scrupulous inspection. Jack gets his clothes from the navy storekeeper, whether in port or at sea. The service maintains factories where are made the blue and white uniforms and the close-fitting and warm pea-jacket overcoat which he wears in winter. At this season of the year he also wears a Jersey or sweater, which is sometimes gotten from the storekeeper and just as often is a gift from some organization or the handiwork of some dear girl.

More Clothes Were Provided.

War has made necessary additions to the dress of the sailor. Duty in the open ocean or the icy waters of the North sea or in the storm surfs of the coast patrol has called for additional and heavier protection. All of this has been supplied to every man in active service, and what is more, the garments were ready and had been issued to the men before they were needed. Recently on a very cold day every station, training camp and every ship was asked if their men were clothed to meet the severe weather, and the answer brought back the cheering word that all were supplied.

All of the men of the navy operating during the war under conditions where there will be more than ordinary exposure have been supplied with specially designed winter clothing in addition to that which every man is required to have. The additional articles in this special outfit are two heavy woolen undershirts, two extra heavy woolen undershirts, two pairs of heavy woolen socks, one blanket overshirt with hood, one pair woolen mittens, one pair of heavy arctic, one pair of heavy leather sea boots.

These outfits have been supplied to the entire deck forces of battleships and large cruisers, colliers and other vessels of train and to transports and to the entire crews of destroyers, mine sweepers, patrol boats, and submarine chasers. It is interesting to note that these outfits, complete and ready for use, were on hand for issue long before needed.

The blanket overshirt is a remarkable piece of protective wearing apparel. Made of heavy wool, it completely covers the body and is worn over the other clothing, while an attached hood of the same material goes over the head. These suits are made especially for the men on submarines. Over all of this is worn a weatherproof suit which also has a hood. The heavy arctic are issued to men on all ships other than destroyers, and these are worn over ordinary shoes. For men on destroyers heavy sea boots are issued. The clothing is inspected at least once each quarter.

The men of the navy, it will be seen, have every protection against the cold and the ice of the sea and land. As Admiral Samuel McGowan, chief of the bureau of supplies and accounts, remarked, in regard to the winter outfit worn by deck crews on exposed duty:

"If a sailor had on any more clothes than he is now wearing he couldn't walk."

Historic St. Margaret's.

St. Margaret's, Westminster, where the British house of commons attended service on the anniversary of the declaration of the war, has the misfortune of being reduced to relative insignificance as a building by its mighty neighbors, St. Stephen's and Westminster abbey, says Christian Science Monitor. It would look immense in a country town and something approaching a cathedral in a village. St. Margaret's in the days when Cromwell ruled at Whitehall was patronized by a number of devout members of the Long parliament, who used regularly to attend service at six o'clock in the morning to hear the seven preachers who officiated in rotation for salaries of £300 each. The west window was presented by a number of Americans in memory of Raleigh.

Man's Creative Force.

Man's highest virtue is always as much as possible to rule external circumstances, and as little as possible to let himself be ruled by them. Life lies before us, as a huge quarry before the architect; he deserves not the name of architect except, out of this fortuitous mass, he can combine, with the greatest economy, suitability, and durability, some form, the pattern of which originated in his own soul. All things without us—nay, I may add, all things within us—are mere elements; but deep in the inmost shrine of our nature lies the creative force, which out of these can produce what they were meant to be, and which leaves us neither sleep nor rest, till in one way or another, without us or within us, this product has taken shape.—Goethe.

Saved by Collar Stud.

An American artillery officer was trying his new gun on the Hun, when a large, spent shell splinter caught him in the back of the neck.

He coolly extracted his collar stud from his shirt and gazed on it reflectively.

"I guess that shell was one of Krupp's," he muttered. "Gee, but it's a good thing you were made in Connecticut, you beaut!"

My Word!

A by-product of the world war in England has been an enormous demand for baseball paraphernalia. London and other English cities have been unable to supply the balls, bats, gloves, masks, etc., urgently called for by the American and Canadian troops stationed in the British isles and near by France.

GLORY OF TURKISH CAPITAL

Great Mosque of Santa Sofia a Marvel in Beauty of Architecture and Rich Decoration.

The great mosque of Santa Sofia towers majestically over Constantinople, dominating its surroundings by sheer thick-set ponderousness. Its bulky dome and tacked-on minarets are, however, only the shell which covers a vast cathedral justly famed for beauty of line and rich ornament.

From the outer court you pass through a heavy bronze door and stand within a hall of such cavernous proportions that it seems impossible that even the exterior, that seemed so massive, could contain it. Above, the dome rises in a sweeping curve. Once mosaic figures of Christian saints adorned these higher regions of the hall, but the vandal Turks long ago covered the saints with plaster through which in certain places they still can be seen smiling dimly but serenely.

The mosque has not always been a Mohammedan temple. The original, Santa Sofia, a Christian cathedral erected by Constantine, was destroyed by fire. It was Justinian who rebuilt it in the sixth century, decorating it with such lavish magnificence that he was himself surprised at the result and cried out: "Solomon, I have surpassed thee!"

In Justinian's day the new temple was a veritable Aladdin's cave. Its walls and columns were of marble brought from foreign quarries and from other temples. Famous shrines of Diana, Apollo and even the Temple of the Sun at Baalbek contributed their statues and jewels, willingly or not, to the glory of Justinian's cathedral.

Into this treasure vault in 1453 burst the conquering Turks, wrecking, plundering and claiming possession. From that time on Santa Sofia, Church of the Divine Wisdom, has been a Turkish mosque, with minarets added and the crescent over all.—Chicago Daily News.

DEPENDS ON ONE'S THOUGHTS

By No Means Always the Part of Real Wisdom for Persons to Say What They Think.

Whether we are to say what we think, or not, depends entirely on what our thoughts are and how they will affect others. There are some thoughts it is a sin to hide. The people who another a good thought because they are afraid of being misunderstood or laughed at, take upon themselves a dangerous responsibility. To conceal a kind thought is something for which there is no excuse.

There are other thoughts which it is a pity to allow to get beyond your own brain. It is unfortunate indeed to have them, but at least you can resolve that they shall never get outside of their birthplace. If you think this world is a dreary, dismal place, what is the good of saying so? If morbid, angry thoughts have taken possession of you, stamp them out as you would a breed of snakes.

Be brave enough to speak the thought which should be spoken, no matter whether it is likely to be popular or not. And be strong enough to hold in a leash the thought which, if it should escape, would work harm to others.—Selected.

What He Didn't Like About Helen.

Kenneth's little playmate, Helen, was to have a party. Only girls were to be invited, but Kenneth was unaware of this fact. He longed for an invitation and expected one up to the day of the party. But alas! the invitation didn't come. Downhearted, he said to his mother: "You know, mother, I like Helen awfully well, but I certainly don't like her ways."

Washing Poor People's Feet.

The custom of washing the feet of the poor on Maundy Thursday at Whitehall was observed by English sovereigns until the end of the seventeenth century. After that the ceremony was performed on their behalf by the Archbishops of York until the middle of the eighteenth century.

Poet Immortalized Hemp.

Longfellow has immortalized the use of hemp in his famous poem, "The Ropewalk," in which he makes us see the rope made into a swing for two lovely maidens, the tightrope for the tired, spangled girl of the cheap street vaudeville show, the cord that the old bell ringer pulls when he rings the noonday hour; through his eyes we see the schoolboy flying his kite, the farmer's wife drawing a bucket of cool water from the well on the old homestead and many other beautiful pictures.

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

FRANCE SENDS SCOUT CABLE

Foreign Minister Pichon has sent this message to the Boy Scouts of America:

"French boy scout organizations are now united in a federation. Wednesday I presented a message to the federation. In his address General De Berckheim said our officers and soldiers show the result of scout training; their strength comes from their spirit. They would like to have our soldiers act here as scoutmasters in towns where they are located. Boy scouts here are always on duty and in uniform. Government is preparing a general system of physical and moral training along scout lines. Meeting ordered the following message to be cabled you:

"Les Eclaireurs de France and Les Eclaireurs Unionistes de France Federated have been thrilled by the message conveyed to them by Mr. Macfarland in behalf of the Boy Scouts of America. Thankful from deeply moved hearts they send you their greetings and respond with the cry, 'America and France onward together until final victory.' General De Berckheim, president of la Federation Francaise des Eclaireurs, Minister of War sent Commandant Royal as special representative to meeting."

CANADA SCOUTS VISIT U. S.

Four Patrol Leaders Tour East on Bicycles and Camp Out.

Four Canadian scouts, all belonging to Troop No. 8 of Ottawa, are in New York City on a well-earned sightseeing trip. They came all the way on their bicycles, except for the boat trip down the Hudson. The scouts made the money for their journey by their farm work in the Ontario fields.

They left Ottawa at 2 p. m. on Tuesday, August 20, and arrived in New York Monday, August 26, and the first thing they wanted to see was the transports that are taking the American forces across. They returned to Ottawa by way of Boston and Ogdensburg. The scouts are Troop Leader W. Rupert Esdale, Arthur C. Pennington, H. Robert Quinney and Thomas M. Cramp, the three latter being patrol leaders. The Canadian scouts all had the red 1914 badge for having taken active part in war work. Their sleeves were covered with merit badges and their shirts with badges showing their rank.

BOY SCOUT DOINGS.

Scouts of Aurora, Ill., removed stones and other obstacles in the paths of tourists.

The boy scouts in a camp near Akron, Ohio, hearing of the shortage of farm labor, picked many bushels of strawberries that would otherwise have gone to waste.

Boy scouts of Dayton, O., are doing guard duty throughout the city owing to the immediate need. They are at their posts from 8 a. m. until 5 p. m. They are doing excellent work.

DANDRUFF MAKES HAIR FALL OUT

A small bottle of "Danderine" keeps hair thick, strong, beautiful.

Girls! Try this! Doubles beauty of your hair in a few moments.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine for a few cents at any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.—Adv.

Lizards May Save Crops.

Lizards are used in Trinidad to combat millions of froghoppers that are now infesting the sugar-cane fields. These insects, which work devastation by sucking sap from the roots and leaves, have been known in the island for some time, but of late they have increased so rapidly that scientists have undertaken to find a means of exterminating them. One planter has established a special breeding place for lizards, which feed freely on the froghoppers. Special precautions are taken to prevent the destruction of the reptiles by birds or other creatures that might feed on them.

Get New Kidneys!

The kidneys are the most overworked organs of the human body, and when they fail in their work of filtering out and throwing off the poisons developed in the system, things begin to happen.

One of the first warnings is pain or stiffness in the lower part of the back; highly colored urine; loss of appetite; indigestion; irritation, or even stone in the bladder. These symptoms indicate a condition that may lead to that dreaded and fatal malady, Bright's disease, for which there is said to be no cure.

Do not delay a minute. At the first indication of trouble in the kidney, liver, bladder or urinary organs start taking Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules, and save yourself before it is too late. Instant relief is necessary in kidney and bladder troubles. A delay is often fatal.

You can almost certainly find immediate relief in Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules. For more than 200 years this famous preparation has been an unfailing remedy for all kidney, bladder and urinary troubles. It is the pure, original Haarlem Oil of our great-grandmother used. About two capsules each day will keep you toned up and feeling fine. Get it at any drug store, and if it does not give you almost immediate relief, your money will be refunded. Be sure you get the GOLD MEDAL brand. None other genuine. In boxes, three sizes.—Adv.
